Time management and secrets of success

Success in legal practice, as in most areas of life, is not complicated. It's about doing a lot of little things well, all of the time. Easy to say but in practice much harder to do.

This seminar is aimed both at experienced practitioners looking to improve their business as well as those starting out on their career seeking a real understanding of the business of law.

In the session we will look at the legal marketplace from the ground up and will assist attendees in identifying those areas where they get it right and those where they can improve and will provide some useful tips and tools on how to bridge the gap.

The course will cover amongst other things:-

- An overview of the profession and market trends
- Understanding the value of a client and the cost of client acquisition
- Looking at services from the client's perspective and re-engineering to meet their needs
- Most common client issues and how to deal with them
- Understanding client's pain points and what is in it for them
- Building and maintaining successful teams and creating good working environments.
- Client communication and retention
- Developing new offerings and services within a firm
- Strategic partnerships and how these might be exploited within the legal landscape
- Creative thinking in business development issues

The event begins at 2pm. Delegate registration is open from 1:30pm
