Drafting Family Agreements; Separation and Pre/Post Nuptial

The drafting or preparation of a Separation Agreement represents the beginning of the end of perhaps lengthy and detailed negotiations between solicitors or at mediation. It is therefore of the utmost importance that solicitors exercise caution and meticulously consider the finer points of what will represent a legally binding agreement between the parties.

Pre Nuptial and Post Nuptial Agreements are also becoming increasingly common in providing protection to the owner of a family business and the family business itself. Such agreements are also common for high net worth individuals who wish some form of protection if the relationship breaks down.

In all the above types of agreements there are numerous pitfalls and areas of risk to be considered at the point of drafting: This seminar will explore these in depth and provide tips for best practice.

The seminar will explore the following issues:-

- The objectives of the agreements
- The benefits of such agreements
- The contingencies that the agreements should cover
- The risks of the agreements(including pension sharing clauses)
- What should be included and what should not be included in the agreements.
- If met with such claims and arguments how to resist such claims.

In addition to the content covered you will also be provided with styles of these agreements for your reference.

This seminar will be of interest to solicitors who specialise in family law, but equally could appeal to those who include family law as part of their general practice.
